GERMANY COULD BE READY FOR WAR IN 5 YEARS

Crowley Reports Reich Not Crippled As Badly As Many Believe

FACTORIES NOT RUINED

Breakdown Of Transportation System Biggest Factor In Ending War

WASHINGTON, June 26—Foreign Economic Administrator Leo T. Crowley reported today that Germany's war-making potential is tremendous despite years of Allied bombing.

He said if the Germans had held out six months longer they might have been able to hit New York city with V-bombs, a little afterwards they could have sent jet-propelled planes against Washington and if left alone now they could be better prepared for war within five years than they were in 1939 when Hitler launched his blitz against Poland.

Crowley gave a senate military affairs subcommittee investigating Germany's war-making capacities a summary of what his agency has been able to learn on the subject through 29 surveys covering virtually every phase of German industrial economy.

Long Occupation

He said the Allied powers must be prepared for a long-term occupation of Germany and rigid industrial control if the German war machine is not again to threaten the peace of the world.

"If we were to leave Germany to its own devices and not to institute a program of economic and industrial disarmament, Germany could be far better prepared for war within five years than she was in 1939," Crowley said.

He conceded that Allied bombing was a major factor in the defeat of Germany.

"But contrary to popular belief Allied bombing did not reduce most German plants to utter ruin," he declared.

Curtailed Plane Making

"It substantially curtailed the production of aircraft... its effect on German production in 1944 and 1945 was tremendous. Its effect on German production for 1946 and 1947 and a few years after that will probably be tremendous.

"But it didn't eliminate Germany's industrial war potential—and its effect on Germany's productive capacity could almost surely be discounted by the Germans before many years have passed unless we take steps to prevent that from happening."

Crowley said one of the principal effects of Allied bombing was to disrupt the flow of raw materials, fuels and other supplies by wrecking the transportation system.

Could Repair Plants

He pointed out that the damage caused by demolition bombing of industrial plants could be repaired fairly rapidly.

Peace Conference Closes Today

President Moves Into 'Big League'

Big Time Diplomats Of World Get Truman's Ideas On Peace

SAN FRANCISCO, June 26—President Truman moved today into the really top flight of the international big time where wars are made and the peace is kept.

In his most important venture into foreign affairs, the new President goes before diplomats of the 50 United Nations late this afternoon to tell them that their responsibility during the peace will be even greater than during the war.

His 15-minute speech will conclude the United Nations conference which has worked here for nine weeks to create machinery to prevent another war.

The President planned to spend most of this morning in his suite at the Fairmont hotel on San Francisco's famous Nob hill. Leading citizens of San Francisco arranged a pre-noon reception in his honor.

The President met international diplomacy in full blast yesterday. When he arrived here by plane from the Pacific northwest, where he had been vacationing, he was greeted by the heads of all the United Nations. Then he rode through a hall of confetti and ticker tape and past shouting supporters to his Fairmont hotel headquarters.

Mr. Truman's reception impressed him visibly, but he insisted with modesty that it was not for him personally but for the office he represented.

"It was not for me," he said. "It was for what we stand. It was for the President of the United States. They were cheering the office, not the man."

In the late afternoon, the President met the full conference delegations at a reception at the Fairmont and later had dinner with Secretary of State E. R. Stettinius, Jr., Gov. Earl Warren of California, Gov. Mon Whigren of Washington, Mayor Roger Lapham of San Francisco and members of the President's immediate staff.

ASSEMBLY RACES TO END SESSION THURSDAY NIGHT

COLUMBUS, June 26—The Ohio General Assembly today scheduled floor action on three of the most important bills of the session in an effort to meet its self-imposed Thursday night deadline on working sessions.

The senate was to take up the largest appropriations bill in the state's history calling for $405,410,000 in operating expenses alone during the present biennium.

The house scheduled action on the controversial Reiners unemployment insurance bill. It also will vote on the Johnson-Mooney-Moulton bill to create a separate conservation department with power to coordinate all conservation activities.

The house by a vote of 109-5 also passed a senate-approved bill to strengthen the present law against fraudulent advertising by imposing severe penalties on violators. An amendment to make the law effective only in cases of "willful violation" was defeated.

Another in a series of welfare bills was passed by the house with only one opposing vote. Under the bill, already approved by the senate, courts would be authorized to compel mental examinations of convicted felons.

Prisoners who were found to be mentally deficient or mentally ill would be turned over to the welfare department which would commit them to appropriate institutions for treatment. All such prisoners would be required to serve their full sentence, however.

The senate, meanwhile, passed a bill to set up a nine-member commission to investigate possible sites for a new fairgrounds and report back to the next legislature. The bill carried a $5,000 appropriation for expenses. It now goes to the house.

Truman Welcomed To Frisco By U. S. Delegation

Truman alights from his "flying White House" that took him from Olympia, Wash., to San Francisco to be greeted by members of the United States delegation to the United Nations conference. Shown from left to right are Sen. Arthur Vandenberg (hand on head), Sen. Tom Connally, President Truman, Secretary of State Edward R. Stettinius, Jr., Dean Virginia Gildersleeve and Rep. Sol Bloom. The President, accompanied by the U. S. delegation and chairmen of the other 49 delegations to the conference participated in a motorcade over a 25-mile route to San Francisco from the field. Mr. Truman was to close the world peace conference with a major foreign policy address following the signing of the newly formed United Nations charter by the delegates in attendance.

GOVERNMENT TO SETTLE STRIKES

Rubber Workers Ignore Plea Of Governor Lausche To Return To Work

By United Press

Government intervention Tuesday loomed as the next—and apparently inevitable—step in the strike of approximately 16,500 members of the United Rubber Workers (CIO) at the Akron plants of the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co.

The striking rubber workers last night voted unanimously to continue their 16-day old walkout in the face of a back-to-work plea by Gov. Frank J. Lausche. The War Labor Board previously had ordered the men to return to work. Lausche reiterated the WLB's warning that the walkout was interfering with critically needed war production and "is depriving our armed forces of the means with which to fight Japan."

"The nation cannot endure work stoppages of this character in such a vital war industry," the governor said. "You workers of Goodyear who are now away from work surely understand the gravity of your conduct."

WHOLE SHIPLOAD OF HAM SUNK ON WAY TO EUROPE

WASHINGTON, June 26—An entire shipload of ham and cured meat was among 500,000 tons of cargo lost en route to Europe during the European war, the war department discloses.

Other equipment that went to the bottom of the Atlantic includes planes, tanks, artillery, locomotives, mules, ammunition and shoes.

The department said 105 vessels were sunk and 10 others damaged in carrying supplies to Europe. U-boats were credited with sinking 77 ships, mines accounted for six while eight went down under enemy bombing attacks.

Fifteen ships were involved in collisions, two blew up and six were lost in storms or went aground. Four were lost due to unknown causes.

Japs Took No Prisoners On Okinawa, Americans Believe After Search

OKINAWA, June 26—The Japanese apparently took no prisoners on Okinawa.

Many of our men listed as missing in action could have fallen alive into the enemy's hands, yet troops say careful search of captured enemy garrisons, aid stations, and hospitals reveals no trace of them. Army authorities disclose they had not been notified by the Japanese of any American prisoners of war.

The only conclusions reached here were that the Americans, finding themselves surrounded by Japanese, preferred to fight to the death or that the Japanese abandoned all pretense of civilized warfare and killed all they could, or both.

Yet when the going got rough, the Japanese themselves were willing enough to surrender and take advantage of our good treatment of prisoners. Their "no quarter" warfare was revealed to be strictly one-sided. In our stockades and hospitals now are 8696 Japanese military prisoners and more are coming in daily, according to Maj. Max Cady, Seattle, Wash., assistant provost marshal.

They are badly beaten men. The fire of fanaticism apparently been kicked out of them. They seem to have forgotten the manifest destiny and glory of the empire and the samurai code of suicide and seem to be thinking only of cigarets, food, and a chance to rest.

They are getting the same rations as our troops and the same hospital treatment with their own medics and nurses working with ours, according to Regimental Surgeon Maj. Earl B. Lokey, New (Continued on Page Two)

Large Crowd Expected To See Infantry Show

An overflow crowd is expected to attend the showing of "Here's Your Infantry" in Ted Lewis park at 9 p. m. Tuesday.

Members of the Army unit which will present the infantry show here arrived in Circleville Monday and started setting up their equipment for the program. Equipment used by the infantry and partially financed by Pickaway county war bond purchases was on display in front of the court house from 3 to 5 p. m. today.

Veterans with long overseas records comprise most of the unit visiting here. Many of the men are Ohioans who are showing fellow natives of the Buckeye state how the money they invest in war bonds is being used by men on the front lines in the Pacific.

China To Be First Signer Of New Organization To Insure Peace

SAN FRANCISCO, June 26—A world still at war today placed its hope for a peaceful future in the charter of a new world organization unanimously adopted by the United Nations conference.

The representatives of the 50 nations approved the charter at 10:50 p. m. (PWT) last night. They will sign the historic document today in a specially built, flag-draped, Hollywood-like setting in San Francisco's stately veterans building.

Tonight they will listen to President Truman give the charter his blessing and his promise to seek immediate United States ratification. The President's address will conclude this nine week conference.

To China, which has been fighting aggression longer than any of the other United Nations, will go the honor of being first to sign the new charter. The United States, the host nation at the conference, will be last.

The signatures of the great powers as well as those of the tiniest nations will represent their pledge to work together in peace to save future generations from the scourge of war and to try to raise the living standards of men everywhere.

JAPS DID NOT TRUST NAZIS, RECORDS REVEAL

BERTESGADEN, June 26—The Nazis and the Japanese distrusted each other so much that even Adolf Hitler confessed he had no advance information on the exact D-Day and H-Hour of the Pearl Harbor attack.

The Japanese attack on the United States obviously was the basis for the Berlin-Tokyo military pact, but it is typical of the Japanese that they didn't trust their own allies enough to tip them off on just when Pearl Harbor was to be bombed.

This was revealed today by captured German stenographers who made a shorthand record of a conference held in Hitler's headquarters in the Ukraine on March 5, 1943.

The fuhrer had been discussing Japanese secretiveness with his chief of staff, Col. Gen. Alfred Jodl, and a group of aides, and the record bristled with Hitlerian indignation.

The record made it clear that the German leaders themselves believed even the Japanese envoys in Washington—Saburo Kurosu and Adm. Kichisaburo Nomura—were unaware of the attack planned for Dec. 7, 1941.

"These people," Hitler snorted in disgust, "send one ambassador and then a second to Washington to wait around there, and they themselves (the envoys) haven't an inkling about Pearl Harbor."

BIG FOUR MEETS TO PLAN COURT

Jackson Confident Others Will Adopt U. S. Plan To Try Criminals

LONDON, June 26—Delegates of the big four met today to establish an international court to try major Nazi war criminals, possibly beginning in August.

Representatives of the United States, Britain, Russia and France hoped to reach agreement in time to present a complete plan to President Truman, Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin at their conference in Berlin next month.

Robert Jackson, U. S. supreme court justice and chief American prosecutor of war criminals, was confident that the other nations would adopt an American plan for a military tribunal in Toto.

Under the plan, Reichsmarshal Hermann Goering, former German Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop, former deputy fuhrer Rudolph Hess and other top war criminals would be tried simultaneously.

MEN IN EUROPE HAVE STARTED TRIPS TO EAST

PARIS, June 26—Several thousand service troops have left Marseille for the Far East, "where they will begin the task of building bases for combat troops who will follow them," European theatre authorities announced today.

Today's announcement was the first word that any American forces actually had left Europe by the eastern route for the Pacific theatre. It also disclosed that large numbers of combat troops already are assembled for embarkation by that route.

Informants estimated that the troops should move out at a rate of 200,000 a month once the transfer is well under way.

Thousands of combat troops are pouring into three big staging areas recently completed in the Marseille zone, and "scores of ships are moving across the Atlantic and Mediterranean for their rendezvous with the soldiers," an official announcement said.

JACOB FOLLROD HURT FIGHTING ON MINDANAO

Pvt. Jacob J. Follrod was wounded in combat May 22 on Mindanao in the Philippines, according to a War Department telegram to his wife.

Follrod, who is the father of three daughters, was wounded after seven days of combat in the Philippines. He was assigned to the 21st Infantry of the 24th Division.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George E. Follrod, near Five Points. His wife and three daughters live in their home at Pleasant Corners.

500 SUPERFORTS DROP BOMBS ON FOUR CITIES

Suzuki Warns Raids By Allies Are Likely To Grow Harder, More Frequent

NEW LANDING REPORTED

37th And Airborne Troops Fight 50 Miles Apart On Luzon; Nips Trapped

By United Press

Superfortresses picked off 10 war plants in Japan today like sharpshooters firing at fixed targets on a rifle range.

Almost 500 of the big planes paced the growing pre-invasion aerial offensive by dropping 3,000 tons of demolition bombs on plants at Akashi, Osaka, Nagoya and Gifu. The 21st bomber command, confident of the results of the spectacular show of precision bombing, named the specific targets. In the one city of Nagoya alone, five different plants were pinpointed.

The Japanese cabinet came up from the shelters to announce its "grim determination" to handle the present "critical war situation."

Radio Tokyo speculated on new invasion moves and said American troops might land on Amami and Kikai islands, 185 miles south of Kyushu. The Japanese still were worried about 200 ships, including many transports, they said were massed in the Keramas, southwest of Okinawa.

Ternate Invaded

Tokyo reported that Allied troops had landed on the little island of Ternate, off the west coast of Halmahera, in the east Indies group of Molucca islands. The island, 25 miles square, guards the entrance to the fine port of Ternate on Halmahera itself.

Another Japanese broadcast reported that an allied fleet of 30 ships had resumed bombardment Balikpapan, rich oil center on Borneo's east coast, and that minesweepers again were at work there. So far there were no landing signs, Tokyo said.

In the Philippines, the 37th division and American airborne troops were 50 miles apart in northern Luzon and between them, a Manila communique said, the Japanese were "thoroughly trapped." The 37th was within four miles of relieving guerrilla forces holding on to the Cagayan provincial capital of Tuguegarao against constant counter-attacks.

Battle For Luichow

BRITISH TROOPS HOLD HITLER'S HALF-BROTHER

LONDON, June 26—A half-brother of Adolf Hitler and a woman described as former German Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop's mistress have been arrested in Hamburg by British occupation troops, a dispatch from Germany said today.

The woman arrested was the 35-year-old blonde divorcee with whom Ribbentrop was living when he was arrested in Hamburg earlier this month. She formerly was described as merely his "landlady." Later evidence indicated she was an active Nazi.

The half-brother of Hitler was believed to be Alois Hitler, who ran a tavern in Berlin before the war, but British military authorities refused to confirm the identification, the dispatch said.

The man was arrested in a room in which he had been living since Germany's capitulation. He said he had not seen Adolf for some time and did not know whether he was dead or alive. He claimed to have been estranged from Adolf for some years.

Meantime, the London Daily Sketch said its listening post heard a weak broadcast from an unidentified station which said Adolf Hitler was "alive and safe."

BIG FOUR MEETS TO PLAN COURT

Jackson Confident Others Will Adopt U. S. Plan To Try Criminals

LONDON, June 26—Delegates of the big four met today to establish an international court to try major Nazi war criminals, possibly beginning in August.

Representatives of the United States, Britain, Russia and France hoped to reach agreement in time to present a complete plan to President Truman, Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin at their conference in Berlin next month.

Robert Jackson, U. S. supreme court justice and chief American prosecutor of war criminals, was confident that the other nations would adopt an American plan for a military tribunal in Tokyo.

MEN IN EUROPE HAVE STARTED TRIPS TO EAST

PARIS, June 26—Several thousand service troops have left Marseille for the Far East, "where they will begin the task of building bases for combat troops who will follow them," European theatre authorities announced today.

Today's announcement was the first word that any American forces actually had left Europe for the eastern route for the Pacific theatre. It also disclosed that large numbers of combat troops already are assembled for embarkation by that route.

Informants estimated that the troops should move out at a rate of 200,000 a month once the transfer is well under way.

Thousands of combat troops are pouring into three big staging areas recently completed in the Marseille zone, and "scores of ships are moving across the Atlantic and Mediterranean for their rendezvous with the soldiers," an official announcement said.

JACOB FOLLROD HURT FIGHTING ON MINDANAO

Pvt. Jacob J. Follrod was wounded in combat May 22 on Mindanao in the Philippines, according to a War Department telegram to his wife.

Follrod, who is the father of three daughters, was wounded after seven days of combat in the Philippines. He was assigned to the 21st Infantry of the 24th Division.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George E. Follrod, near Five Points. His wife and three daughters live in their home at Pleasant Corners.

NEW LANDING REPORTED

37th And Airborne Troops Fight 50 Miles Apart On Luzon; Nips Trapped

By United Press

Superfortresses picked off 10 war plants in Japan today like sharpshooters firing at fixed targets on a rifle range.

Almost 500 of the big planes paced the growing pre-invasion aerial offensive by dropping 3,000 tons of demolition bombs on plants at Akashi, Osaka, Nagoya and Gifu. The 21st bomber command, confident of the results of the spectacular show of precision bombing, named the specific targets. In the one city of Nagoya alone, five different plants were pinpointed.

The Japanese cabinet came up from the shelters to announce its "grim determination" to handle the present "critical war situation."

Radio Tokyo speculated on new invasion moves and said American troops might land on Amami and Kikai islands, 185 miles south of Kyushu. The Japanese still were worried about 200 ships, including many transports, they said were massed in the Keramas, southwest of Okinawa.

Ternate Invaded
Tokyo reported that Allied troops had landed on the little island of Ternate, off the west coast of Halmahera, in the east Indies group of Molucca islands. The island, 25 miles square, guards the entrance to the fine port of Ternate on Halmahera itself.

Another Japanese broadcast reported that an allied fleet of 30 ships had resumed bombardment of Balikpapan, rich oil center on Borneo's east coast, and that minesweepers again were at work there. So far there were no landing signs, Tokyo said.

In the Philippines, the 37th division and American airborne troops were 50 miles apart in northern Luzon and between them, a Manila communique said, the Japanese were "thoroughly trapped." The 37th was within four miles of relieving guerilla forces holding on to the Cagayan provincial capital of Tuguegarao against constant counter-attacks.

Battle For Luchow

BRITISH TROOPS HOLD HITLER'S HALF-BROTHER

LONDON, June 26—A half-brother of Adolf Hitler and a woman described as former German Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop's mistress have been arrested in Hamburg by British occupation troops, a dispatch from Germany said today.

The woman arrested was the 35-year-old blonde divorcee with whom Ribbentrop was living when he was arrested in Hamburg earlier this month. She formerly was described as merely his "landlady." Later evidence indicated she was an active Nazi.

The half-brother of Hitler was believed to be Alois Hitler, who ran a tavern in Berlin before the war, but British military authorities refused to confirm the identification, the dispatch said.

The man was arrested in a room in which he had been living since Germany's capitulation. He said he had not seen Adolf for some time and did not know whether he was dead or alive. He claimed to have been estranged from Adolf for some years.

Meantime, the London Daily Sketch said its listening post heard a weak broadcast from an unidentified station which said Adolf Hitler was "alive and safe."

50 COUNTRIES SIGN CHARTER OF WORLD PLAN

President To Officially Close Long Conference With Talk Tonight

China—suffered through the league's failures at Geneva. They have repeatedly warned the world against expecting a miracle this time and have urged that the charter and the new organization be considered only the beginning of a long-hard road toward peace.

The nine-week-old United Nations conference is expected to end on that note tonight. Preceding President Truman will be speakers from nine other countries. The keynote of their remarks—to be delivered in eight languages—will be that the success of the present organization depends upon the will of the people to make it succeed.

Truman Pops Up Meeting

Tonight's session will bring to a dramatic and colorful close a conference that has been marked for weeks by dull, hard work in the rooms of committees. President Truman took it out of that state as soon as he arrived here late yesterday by airplane.

Riding through the streets of San Francisco, the new president of the United States was given a tumultuous reception by San Franciscans and the delegates of the 50 United Nations.

A few hours after he arrived, the lucky ticket holders to the ninth anniversary session poured into the War Memorial opera house for a drama-packed meeting.

It was Halifax' turn to preside and he called the meeting to order on the dot—at 9:30 p. m.—and started through the agenda. A routine report on release of restricted documents was approved and the meeting began consideration of the reports by the four conference commissions.

Reports Approved

The reports were approved without incident except for the one containing the recommendation that no mention be made in the charter of withdrawal from the organization. Soviet delegate Andrei A. Gromyko objected to a phase of explanation in the report which said that withdrawal by a member would leave the burden of maintaining peace on the other members.

The reports of commission I, II, III and IV were unanimously adopted and Guillermo Belt of Cuba, rapporteur of the steering committee, then presented his report asking adoption of (1) the charter of the world organization, (2) the statute of the new world court and, (3) the agreement for establishment of a "preparatory commission" to function until the new organization meets.

Halifax, citing the grave importance of the vote about to be taken, asked the heads of delegations to stand to be counted instead of the usual raising of hands.

The delegates stood and were counted by Secretary-General Alger Hiss. When they were seated, Halifax asked:

"Any opposed?" None stood.

"I declare the charter adopted unanimously," Halifax said.

It was then 10:50 p. m. PWT, June 26, 1945.

The jam-packed opera house burst into deafening applause accompanied by hurrahs from the balcony.

Realistic Plan Ready

This conference ends today with what veteran diplomats contend is a far more realistic plan for peace than the old league. It recognizes the overwhelming preponderance of power of the big powers and grants them special privileges in the organization.

Another sharp contrast with the league—one the diplomats call more realistic—is the plan to equip the new organization with armed forces. "Teeth," to put down future aggressors.

There is frank admission that the new plan will work only so long as the big powers—the nations which defeated the axis bid for world conquest—hang together in peace. The forthcoming years will be the major test of that wartime alliance.

It is in such an organization that the delegates here place their faith. It is an organization expanded far beyond the most optimistic hopes of those who drafted the original Dumbarton Oaks proposals last summer in Washington.

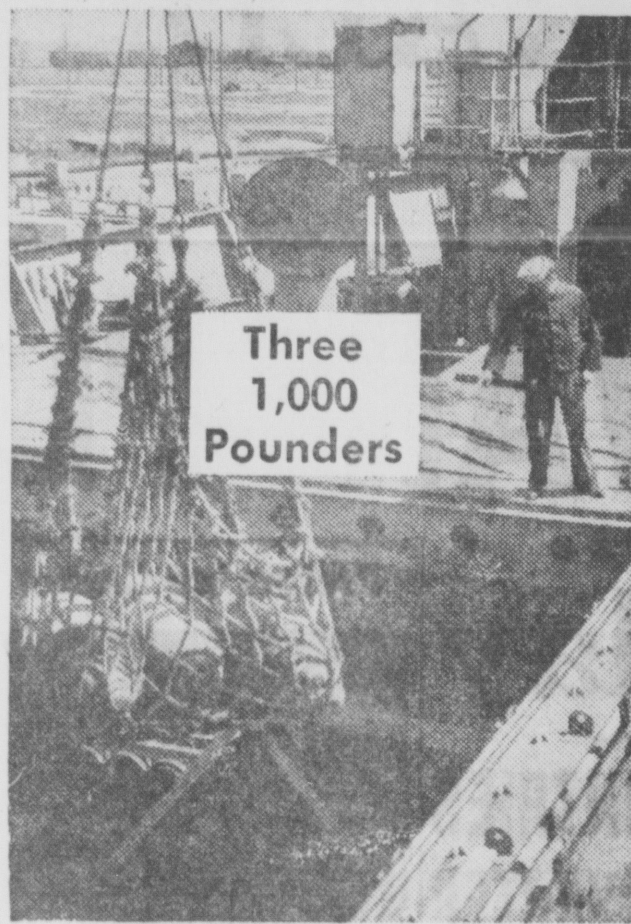

With the charter go the hopes of more than 2,000,000,000 war-weary peoples. Hardly a corner of the world was untouched by this war and an estimated 1,827,000,000 people of the total 2,170,000,000 world population were represented here.

The new organization can be established only after the big five and a majority of the other states—23 nations—have ratified the charter.

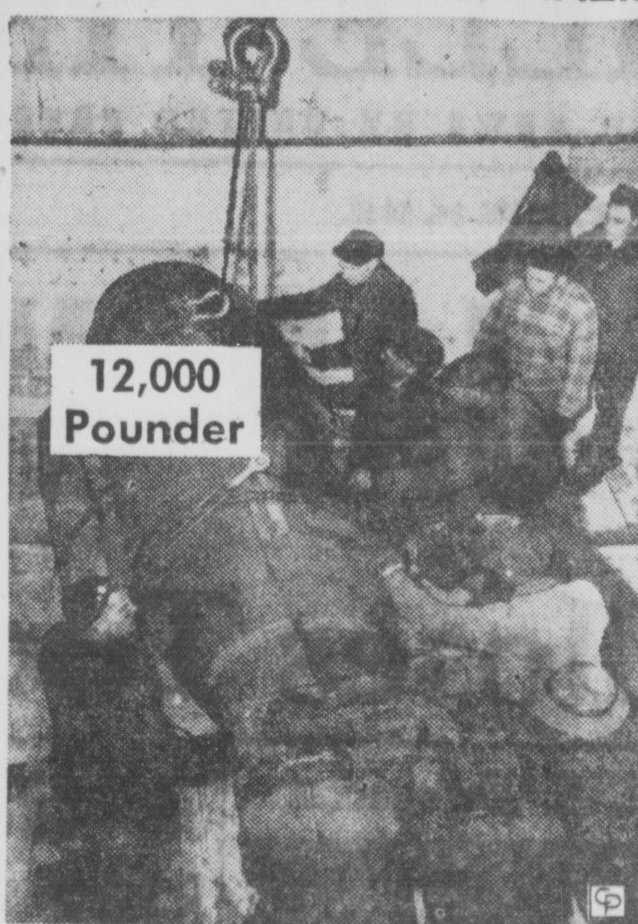

Commission Set Up

In the meantime, the conference has set up a "preparatory commission" to get ready for the first meetings. There appears to be virtually no doubt that the necessary ratification will be forth-

Local Union President C. V. Wheeler said he gave the membership a full report on a show-cause hearing before the War Labor Board at Washington to which union officials were subpoenaed after they refused to voluntarily appear at a previous hearing.

The refusal of the men to return to work pending WLB action on their grievances marked the third time in two weeks that they have ignored official return-to-work instructions.

Lausche said the refusal of the men to resume production amounted to open defiance "of duly constituted authorities."

"Sunday I was in the city of Akron," he said, "and extended a welcome to the young men of that community who were members of the Black Hawk division which fought so gallantly in the European theatre of war."

"While extending the welcome, I know that the people of Akron were glad to see these boys back home but yet it seemed a travesty that a vital war industry at that moment should be at a standstill while 17,000 workers were out on strike," Lausche said.

coming by the end of the year.

The preparatory commission will hold a brief organizing meeting here Wednesday morning. It will elect officers and set the date for the first meeting within a few weeks at its headquarters—London.

The commission will be composed of a representative of all 50 nations, but the work will be done by a small 14-nation executive committee—composed of the same nations which served here on the conference executive committee.

The major work of the preparatory commission will be to prepare recommendations for the first meetings of the general assembly and the security council of the new organization. Among those who will be studies and recommendations for a permanent headquarters of the new league—and issue that was not discussed here.

Deaths and Funerals

AMOS WILSON

Amos Wilson, formerly of Circleville, died about 3 a. m. Tuesday at his home on Dennison avenue, Columbus.

He is survived by his wife, in Columbus and a daughter, now living in Michigan. Also his mother, Mrs. A. C. Wilson, East Union street, two brothers, Edwin Wilson, Circleville, and W. B. Wilson, Columbus, and Mrs. Andrew Roundhouse, West High street, sister-in-law.

No announcement has been made as to the funeral and burial arrangements.

DRIVER HELD FOLLOWING TRUCK-AUTO ACCIDENT

Boyd Smith, 44, Amanda mechanic, was held in Circleville jail Tuesday following his arrest on charges of driving while intoxicated. Charges were filed following an automobile accident Monday afternoon at Court and High streets.

Smith, according to the police report, ran into the rear of an automobile driven by Joan Rice Lewis, Jackson, Ohio. The rear deck lid, bumper, tail light and rear fender of the automobile were damaged. There was no damage done to the truck in the accident, police reported.

In listing Germany's facilities in that respect he mentioned the dye industry, nitrogen production, synthetic textile fibre, rubber and petroleum capacity and a vast reservoir of machine tools.

"In late 1944 the German nation achieved the highest level of production in its entire history," he said.

He also called attention to Germany's known technological abilities.

SOLON REPORTS PUNISHMENT OF ACCUSED GUARDS

WASHINGTON, June 26 — A house military affairs subcommittee was informed today that guards who beat soldier prisoners at the Fort Lincoln, Neb., air base last year had been punished.

Rep. Leon H. Gavin, R. Pa., told the house yesterday that an M. P. had clubbed a young cadet at the base into unconsciousness sometime last year.

A member of the subcommittee which investigated the case, Gavin said the cadet, who had been court-martialed for a minor infraction of the rules, had been ordered to break rocks with a short-handled sledge at 120 strokes per minute and the M. P. did not believe he was working fast enough.

Gavin said "a number of other cases were uncovered" involving "privates, non-commissioned officers and even a chaplain." He called on the war department to punish all those involved and to find out if similar incidents of "gestapo type training" had occurred at other camps.

CAR, TRUCK BUMP

Slight damage resulted when a truck driven by Louis R. Connel, 30, Columbus and a passenger car driven by Frank J. Woodward, 57, 146 Walnut street, collided at the intersection of the alleys at the side and at the rear of the Kroger store on West Main street Monday.

MARRIAGE LICENSE

Three couples applied for marriage licenses at the county court house Monday. The applicants were:

Raymond Brungs Jr., 20, 116 Town street, and Avonelle Bosworth, 321 West Ohio street.

Donald Woodrow Draize, 27, 237 East Mill street, soldier, and Sarah Elizabeth Morgan, Route 1, Williamsport.

Clifton Dresbach Shook, 64, 208 North Court street, a retired fireman, and Edna Mae Oliver, 120½ East Main street.

ALIMONY ACTION FILED

Helen Styers filed petition for alimony from Lawrence Styers on charges of gross neglect and extreme cruelty. The petition states that they were married at Greenup, Ky., September 15, 1935, and have one child. The petition listed the Third National Bank, Circleville, as co-defendant with Mr. Styers.

cously on a single charge of conspiracy.

Britain already has indicated her approval of the plan, but Russia and France have not made public their attitude. Sponsors of the American proposals pointed out, however, that no alternative scheme has been put forward either in Moscow or Paris.

Jackson has full authority from President Truman to reach any agreement he deems fit with the other three powers. It was doubtful, though, that the Russian delegation has the same carte blanche from Stalin, since this is the first time the Soviets have engaged in joint conversations on the matter.

Besides creating a trial court, the conference was expected to outline the offenses over which it will have jurisdiction and establish the trial procedure.

Once these basic problems have been disposed of, the four chief prosecutors will settle down to the tremendous task of drawing indictments against the Nazi arch criminals. It was felt that this would take a minimum of one month because of the literal trailloads of evidence to be sifted.

Barring serious obstacles, the trials conceivably might open in August. They almost certainly will be held in occupied Germany, probably in the Anglo-American zone since all the top criminals are in the hands of the western Allies.

SENATE, HOUSE CONFEREES WORK ON OPA PROGRAM

WASHINGTON, June 26—Senate and house conferees sought to reconcile differences on OPA curbs today amid reports that the office of economic stabilization was violently opposed to one amendment.

The amendment was the house-approved "food czar" amendment which would give the secretary of agriculture veto power over all food regulations.

Congressional sources believed the administration would accept the food czar amendment but would fight all other restrictions on OPA.

But at least one branch of the administration—the OES—was known to believe that giving the secretary of agriculture final say on food prices would strip it of power to hold the line against inflation, the job it was set up by congress to do.

The OES feels that regulation of food and commodity prices is interlocked with regulation of wages. Its job is to coordinate both. It believes that it would be a natural tendency of the department of agriculture to seek higher farm prices without regard to their relationship to other stabilization factors such as wages.

another attack on the airfield south of the city. Other Chinese columns closed in from the north and north.

The jungle fighting in Burma was slowed considerably by heavy seasonal rains which flooded large areas of the country.

The enemy casualties on Okinawa passed the 110,000 mark with the capture of 794 prisoners yesterday. The count now was 101,853 dead and 8,696 prisoners.

Japanese planes raided the new air bases on the island and some damage was done. Two raiders were shot down.

Fear Fleet Action

Radio Tokyo said that the American fleet in the Keramas islands included three battleships, three cruisers and a number of large, medium and small transports. The Japanese believed the Americans would seize the islands north of Okinawa and south of Kyushu to ease the tricky supply situation involved in any invasion of the homeland.

Premier Kantaro Suzuki bluntly told the Japanese people their present crisis was "the greatest since the Mongolian invasion." He also warned:

"Enemy air raids over Japan are likely to grow both in intensity and frequency, while new enemy invasion operations must also be expected. Now is the time to decide the destiny of the Japanese empire."

Greatest Precision Raid

The Japanese fears weren't eased much by the reminder from Washington that Russian forces in Siberia were pinning down several Japanese divisions. The Soviet threat to Japan was stressed by Foreign Economic Administrator Leo T. Shoup in explaining lend-lease shipments to Siberia.

Today's B-29 attacks were the greatest precision destruction raids of the Pacific war. It was the first time the superforts had hit so many targets at one time. All of the plants had been damaged in previous raids, and today's attacks were intended to knock out what was left and cripple repairs.

PATTON ACCUSED OF DICTATING MEN'S EMOTIONS

DENVER, Colo., June 26—Lt. Gen. George S. Patton, commander of the Third army, today was the target of a charge that he tried to "dictate" the thoughts and emotion of his men.

The accusations came from Bill Mauldin, Scripps-Howard cartoonist considered a spokesman for the American soldier. Mauldin was in Denver yesterday en route with his wife to Los Angeles where he will see his 22-month-old son for the first time.

Point—discharged from the Army, two days ago, Mauldin, the creator of the famous "Up Front with Mauldin" and its successor "Sweat It Out," revealed some details about an interview he had with General Patton last March in Luxembourg.

Explaining that his recent discharge had nothing to do with his expression of opinion, Mauldin said that General Patton called him into headquarters and "tried to tell me what I should think and what I should draw, what G.I.'s should think, what the American people should think."

Orleans, La., of the 382nd infantry group. Even Korean concubines have been accepted as apprentice nurses to help care for wounded Japanese.

But in the front lines where mopping up continues you hear the gaunt sun-blistered American kids wondering what happened to their missing buddies—the airmen who were downed behind enemy lines, the patrols that never returned, the wounded who had vanished when stretcher-bearers returned for them.

"We fall all over ourselves to treat the Japanese prisoners of war right," said a grimy machine-gunner, "but brother I'd sure hate to be captured by those snake-eyed crooks we've been bringing in."

There is probably no more pathetic sight in warfare than a man searching among the dead for his missing buddy, convinced his pal would be better off dead than alive and in the hands of the enemy. That's the way these veterans of the Pacific war feel about it. They willingly fight like civilized men rather than like savages, but they don't expect as much from the Japanese.

BRITISH PLAN ACCEPTED BY HINDU LEADERS

SIMLA, India, June 26—Reliable sources said today that Britain's plan for broader Indian self-government has been accepted provisionally by the conference of Indian leaders.

Practically all British proposals were understood to have been approved tentatively, including those for Hindu-Muslim parity on an executive council and the retention of the viceroy's right of veto.

The only stumbling block remaining was believed to be the selection of panels from which representatives for the proposed new government would be chosen. Bhulabha Desai, one of the representatives of Mohandas K. Gandhi's all-India congress, told newsmen that work at the conference was "going well." Gandhi himself has not attended the meetings.

ANNOUNCE LOSS OF MINESWEEPER IN BORNEO AREA

WASHINGTON, June 26—The Navy today announced the loss of the minesweeper Salute as a result of enemy action in the Borneo area.

The 45-ton vessel, which carried a wartime crew of about 100, lost nine members—six killed and three missing.

Skipper of the vessel, Lt. John S. Nichols, Garden City, Long Island, N. Y., was a survivor.

Loss of this small craft brought to 319 the number of American naval vessels lost from all causes in this war.

The Salute was built by the Winslow Marine Railway & Shipbuilding Co., Seattle, Wash., and commissioned Dec. 4, 1943.

The ship saw action in the Leyte island invasion and in minesweeping operations in the Philippines area.

She was engaged in convoy and escort work prior to the Borneo operations in which she was lost.

The refusal of the men to return to work pending WLB action on their grievances marked the third time in two weeks that they have ignored official return-to-work instructions.

Lausche said the refusal of the men to resume production amounted to open defiance "of duly constituted authorities."

"Sunday I was in the city of Akron," he said, "and extended a welcome to the young men of that community who were members of the Black Hawk division which fought so gallantly in the European theatre of war."

"While extending the welcome, I know that the people of Akron were glad to see these boys back home but yet it seemed a travesty that a vital war industry at that moment should be at a standstill while 17,000 workers were out on strike," Lausche said.

coming by the end of the year. The preparatory commission will hold a brief organizing meeting here Wednesday morning. It will elect officers and set the date for the first meeting within a few weeks at its headquarters—London.

The commission will be composed of a representative of all 50 nations, but the work will be done by a small 14-nation executive committee—composed of the same nations which served here on the conference executive committee.

The major work of the preparatory commission will be to prepare recommendations for the first meetings of the general assembly and the security council of the new organization. Among those will be studies and recommendations for a permanent headquarters of the new league—and issue that was not discussed here.

Deaths and Funerals

AMOS WILSON
Amos Wilson, formerly of Circleville, died about 3 a. m. Tuesday at his home on Dennison avenue, Columbus.

He is survived by his wife, in Columbus and a daughter, now living in Michigan. Also his mother, Mrs. A. C. Wilson, East Union street, two brothers, Edwin Wilson, Circleville, and W. B. Wilson, Columbus, and Mrs. Andrew Roundhouse, West High street, sister-in-law.

No announcement has been made as to the funeral and burial arrangements.

DRIVER HELD FOLLOWING TRUCK-AUTO ACCIDENT

Boyd Smith, 44, Amanda mechanic, was held in Circleville jail Tuesday following his arrest on charges of driving while intoxicated. Charges were filed following an automobile accident Monday afternoon at Court and High streets.

Smith, according to the police report, ran into the rear of an automobile driven by Joan Rice Lewis, Jackson, Ohio. The rear deck lid, bumper, tail light and rear fender of the automobile were damaged. There was no damage done to the truck in the accident, police reported.

The enemy casualties on Okinawa passed the 110,000 mark with the capture of 794 prisoners yesterday. The count now was 101,853 dead and 8,696 prisoners. Japanese planes raided the new air bases on the island and some damage was done. Two raiders were shot down.

Fear Fleet Action

Radio Tokyo said that the American fleet in the Keramas islands included three battleships, three cruisers and a number of large, medium and small transports. The Japanese believed the Americans would seize the islands north of Okinawa and south of Kyushu to ease the tricky supply situation involved in any invasion of the homeland.

Premier Kantaro Suzuki bluntly told the Japanese people their present crisis was "the greatest since the Mongolian invasion." He also warned:

"Enemy air raids over Japan are likely to grow both in intensity and frequency, while new enemy invasion operations must also be expected. Now is the time to decide the destiny of the Japanese empire."

Greatest Precision Raid

The Japanese fears weren't eased much by the reminder from Washington that Russian forces in Siberia were pinning down several Japanese divisions. The Soviet threat to Japan was stressed by Foreign Economic Administrator Leo T. Crowley in explaining lend-lease shipments to Siberia.

Today's B-29 attacks were the greatest precision destruction raids of the Pacific war. It was the first time the superforts had hit so many targets at one time. All of the plants had been damaged in previous raids, and today's attacks were intended to knock out what was left and cripple repairs.

PATTON ACCUSED OF DICTATING MEN'S EMOTIONS

DENVER, Colo., June 26—Lt. Gen. George S. Patton, commander of the Third army, today was the target of a charge that he tried to "dictate" the thoughts and emotion of his men.

The accusations came from Bill Mauldin, Scripps-Howard cartoonist considered a spokesman for the American soldier. Mauldin was in Denver yesterday en route with his wife to Los Angeles where he will see his 22-month-old son for the first time.

Point - discharged from the Army, two days ago, Mauldin, the creator of the famous "Up Front with Mauldin" and its successor "Sweatin' It Out," revealed some details about an interview he had with General Patton last March in Luxembourg.

Explaining that his recent discharge had nothing to do with his expression of opinion, Mauldin said that General Patton called him into headquarters and "tried to tell me what I should think and what I should draw, what GI's should think, what the American people should think."

Orleans, La., of the 382nd infantry group. Even Korean concubines have been accepted as apprentice nurses to help care for wounded Japanese.

But in the front lines where mopping up continues you hear the gaunt sun-blistered American kids wondering what happened to their missing buddies—the airmen who were downed behind enemy lines, the patrols that never returned, the wounded who had vanished when stretcher-bearers returned for them.

"We fall all over ourselves to treat the Japanese prisoners of war right," said a grimy machine-gunner, "but brother I'd sure hate to be captured by those snake-eyed crooks we've been bringing in."

There is probably no more pathetic sight in warfare than a man searching among the dead for his missing buddy, convinced his pal would be better off dead than alive and in the hands of the enemy. That's the way these veterans of the Pacific war feel about it. They willingly fight like civilized men rather than like savages, but they don't expect as much from the Japanese.

BRITISH PLAN ACCEPTED BY HINDU LEADERS

SIMLA, India, June 26—Reliable sources said today that Britain's plan for broader Indian self-government has been accepted provisionally by the conference of Indian leaders.

Practically all British proposals were understood to have been approved tentatively, including those for Hindu-Muslim parity on an executive council and the retention of the viceroy's right of veto.

The only stumbling block remaining was believed to be the method for selection of panels from which representatives for the proposed new government would be chosen.

Bhulabhai Desai, one of the representatives of Mohandas K. Gandhi's all-India congress, told newsmen that work at the conference was "going well." Gandhi himself has not attended the meetings.

CHARTER MAKES NUMEROUS JOBS

U. S. Will Need Large Staff
When Senate Ratifies
World Organization

SAN FRANCISCO, June 26—As soon as the United Nations charter is ratified by the senate, the United States must begin recruiting a large staff of officials to represent this government in the new world organization.

The jobs that must be filled range all the way from this country's representative on the world security council down to secretaries and clerical help for the U. S. members of the various bodies of the organization.

Secretary of State Edward R. Stettinius, Jr., has received most prominent mention as the most likely choice to be the top American representative in the organization. He has directed this nation's efforts in its establishment. And if President Truman decides to replace him as secretary of state, the world organization post would be a likely spot for him.

Here are some of the top jobs for which the United States must find candidates.

Security council—one man to set continuously as this nation's permanent member of that vital body whose only job will be maintenance of peace and security. It will be this nation's most important international post, far outstripping any ambassadorship.

General assembly—Five men to represent the United States at the annual meetings of this body. They will have only one vote among them, but each will have full privileges as a U. S. representative and be assisted by technical and clerical assistants.

Economic and social council—the United States will be entitled to one representative on this body, if it is elected to the 18-nation council. The U. S. representative will be assisted by a large staff of technical assistants, including probably several representatives on the various specialized commissions to be set up.

Trusteeship council—the United States, as a permanent member of the security council, will be entitled to "one specially qualified person" to represent it on this council whether or not it ever holds any trust territories.

International court of justice—The U. S. members of the permanent court of arbitration will be allowed to nominate an American for one of the 15 judgeships. There was always an American on the old world court even though this country never joined.

Military staff committee—U. S. Army Chief of Staff Gen. George C. Marshall will be entitled to sit on this committee but is more likely to designate one of his top deputies for the job. There has been speculation that Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower might get the nod after his occupation job in Germany is completed or well underway.

Secretariat—hundreds of Americans are expected to apply for the many jobs that will be open. It is not unlikely that there will be a strong move to have an American named secretary-general. Alger Hiss, secretary-general of the United Nations conference, already has been mentioned as a possible candidate.

TIRE QUOTA FOR JULY SAME AS JUNE, OPA SAYS

WASHINGTON, June 26—The Office of Price Administration announced today that passenger-car tires available to civilians in July will be the same as the June quota—2,500,000.

This quota, OPA said, was the largest monthly allocation under rationing. Only B and C ration-book holders are eligible for new tires.

July quotas of truck and bus tires exceeded those for June, OPA revealed. Max McCullough, deputy administrator for rationing, emphasized that these higher truck and bus tire quotas reflected the greater need for tires during the summer rather than any increase in supply. He said military needs for these sizes continued heavy.

"The tire situation remains seriously tight," he said. "We are rationing more tires than current production warrants—and conservation must be practiced just as diligently this summer as it has been in the past."

Some of the experiences of a prisoner of war were related by Lt. Donald W. Henry at the Kiwanis Club meeting Monday evening at the Pickaway Country Club.

Lt. Henry traced his activities from the time he was captured near the Brenner pass until he was freed April 29. He arrived in New York May 29, a month after his liberation. Paul Hang was welcomed back into the club as the first military member to return to active membership. Hang has been discharged from the Army after service in the European theater where he was wounded twice.

Guests at the meeting were Sgt. Robert Gordon and George Fishpaw.

Following Lt. Henry's talk club members held a short observance of the national convention week of Kiwanis International.

With Farmall Tractor Power

Throughout the Spring, from the Rockies to the Atlantic seaboard, worried farmers searched the skies for signs of clear weather, but the cold rains fell relentlessly.

For more than a month the seed should have been germinating in the warm soil. Millions of acres lay unplanted because the ground was too wet for preparation of the seed bed and too cold for germination of the seed.

Only a generation ago there could have been but one outcome—crop shortage and food scarcity. Nature allows scant time for planting when the warm sun waits till late May or June before drying the soggy soil. Horses are too slow and tire too quickly to get the job done then.

But the farmers remember May of 1943—only two years ago—when their fast, untiring tractors averted crop failure. Then, too, rains flooded the fields and the month was all but spent before they could go in on the land and plant.

In 1943, most farmers drove their tractors

from dark to dark, and longer. Many planted around the clock, working in two or three shifts. They made one of the greatest crops in history.

In today's war-torn world—with hunger and disease already stalking many peoples—even one major crop failure could bring famine. This is why the sound of tractors and planting machinery was heard, day and night, from the Plains states to the Eastern seaboard—why headlights stabbed the darkness over the fields.

America's farmers are doing it again, in spite of an unprecedented combination of adverse circumstances—bad weather, shortages of machines and shortages of manpower. For the second time in three years, they are relying upon their tractor-powered machines to help rescue large areas of the world from catastrophe. More of these tractors are products of International Harvester than of any other company.

LT. DON HENRY IS SPEAKER AT KIWANIS CLUB

Some of the experiences of a prisoner of war were related by Lt. Donald W. Henry at the Kiwanis Club meeting Monday evening at the Pickaway Country Club.

Lt. Henry traced his activities from the time he was captured near the Brenner pass until he was freed April 29. He arrived in New York May 29, a month after his liberation. He told of the treatment he received in camp, the food and many interesting incidents which took place while he was confined.

Paul Hang was welcomed back into the club as the first military member to return to active membership. Hang has been discharged from the Army after service in the European theater where he was wounded twice.

Guests at the meeting were Sgt. Robert Gordon and George Fishpaw.

Following Lt. Henry's talk club members held a short observance of the national convention week of Kiwanis International.

THEY DID IT BEFORE-- THEY CAN DO IT AGAIN
With Farmall Tractor Power

Throughout the Spring, from the Rockies to the Atlantic seaboard, worried farmers searched the skies for signs of clear weather, but the cold rains fell relentlessly.

For more than a month the seed should have been germinating in the warm soil. Millions of acres lay unplanted because the ground was too wet for preparation of the seed bed and too cold for germination of the seed.

Only a generation ago there could have been but one outcome—crop shortage and food scarcity. Nature allows scant time for planting when the warm sun waits till late May or June before drying the soggy soil. Horses are too slow and tire too quickly to get the job done then.

But the farmers remember May of 1943—only two years ago—when their fast, untiring tractors averted crop failure. Then, too, rains flooded the fields and the month was all but spent before they could go in on the land and plant.

In 1943, most farmers drove their tractors

from dark to dark, and longer. Many planted around the clock, working in two or three shifts. They made one of the greatest crops in history.

In today's war-torn world—with hunger and disease already stalking many peoples—even one major crop failure could bring famine. This is why the sound of tractors and planting machinery was heard, day and night, from the Plains states to the Eastern seaboard—why headlights stabbed the darkness over the fields.

America's farmers are doing it again, in spite of an unprecedented combination of adverse circumstances—bad weather, shortages of machines and shortages of manpower. For the second time in three years, they are relying upon their tractor-powered machines to help rescue large areas of the world from catastrophe. More of these tractors are products of International Harvester than of any other company.

TRIUMPHAL PARADES

THE celebrations and parades in honor of General Eisenhower have indeed been wonderful, but there's one bet the designers missed. In ancient Rome a victorious general used regularly on his return to celebrate such a triumph with an enormous parade which included strange animals from the conquered countries. And the most conspicuous section was that exhibiting the captured generals and kings, who walked in chains behind the chariot of their conqueror.

Leading Nazis and Fascists—those who are still alive—would perhaps have added a striking note to any Eisenhower parade. But then, since most welcoming towns are about at the limit of their housing resources already, what with the visiting crowds of spectators, perhaps it is just as well that the captured Nazis remain in the jails provided for them.

TWO HISTORIC VOYAGES

MAJOR General Le May's record-breaking flight from Hawaii to Washington in a B-29 reminded older Americans of the famous trip of the Oregon in 1898.

The Oregon, premier "ship of the line" of the infant U. S. Navy of modern times, took 75 days to get from San Francisco around the tip of South America to the scene of action in Cuba. General Le May flew from Honolulu, far beyond the Golden Gate, to Washington in 20 hours and 15 minutes.

Of course, there is no real comparison. The Oregon had to go slowly "round the Horn" because there was no Panama Canal. And the greatest contrast, greater than speed, was in her lack of communication. Without radio or air arm she was out of contact with the world for days while the public worried lest the country's top battleship had been sunk.

In the 47 years between these voyages, the fingers of military intelligence have come to touch every spot of the earth. They follow movements with the speed of light, over friendly or enemy country alike.

This renders the historic factor of surprise extremely difficult, and should, it is hoped, discourage men of ill-will from waging war for easy gain hereafter. For similar advances in weapons will make another war the last for the human race.

There is still some modesty in the newspaper profession. One editor even confesses frankly that he doesn't understand the situation in the Levant.

Prize-winner of this year's Wasted Effort contest: the armed robber who risked a penitentiary term for a wallet which contained exactly two cents.

One safe prophecy is that before long Americans will know a lot more about the mainland of Japan.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, June 26—A fair-trade-practices bill for labor (Richberg) is supposed to lie around congress until the coming expected wave of union strikes generates an irresistible demand for its adoption—then it, or something like it is passed. This, indeed, is the sotto voce program.

Such delay may sound like a back-end way to handle an expected national crisis, because the bill proposes to avert the strikes by providing machinery for just settlements, not only in the public interest, but in the long range interest of the unions. Yet you can see what is beginning to happen to the legislation in the probable absence of Alabama's Senator Lister Hill from the list of sponsors.

This was supposed to be a four-senator bill, introduced by two Democrats and two Republicans; in fact, the same ones who sponsored the declaration of senatorial peace principles, Ball, Burton, Hatch—and Hill. But on this bill, Hill says he was "just too busy" to fill out the B2H2 leadership, so it became B2H1. Most people think the real reason is that the CIO was instrumental in Hill's recent re-election.

The "too busy" treatment is likely to be applied generally to the proposal, because nothing in its announced purposes can very well be openly opposed by the unions, or anyone.

Basically, the bill would require arbitrary unions to moderate their "the public be damned" policy. Disruptions of public service, such as in the Fifth avenue bus slowdown in New York recently, where the drivers just decided to run an hour or so late, as well as strikes in public utilities, milk deliveries, etc., would be prevented by judicial compulsory arbitration.

This is in the sound interest of the unions, because all now are suffering from the conspicuous public-be-damned policy of a few unions.

The bill was not written by manufacturers or employers, but by an old union lawyer, Donald Richberg, who composed the most successful labor law ever enacted, the railway labor act. Under it the railway brotherhoods have prospered better than other labor unions, and without strikes.

The senatorial sponsors are not anti-labor people either, but somewhat left-leaning. The way they described their general purposes is this:

They would break up the competitive handling of labor through various government agencies now, and put all conciliation and mediation activities in a new five-man board.

A second board of three would handle complaints of unfair practices by labor or employer, not just labor alone, as now.

The Wagner act would be further amended to make unions democratic and to limit the closed shop to places where the union controls at least 75 per cent of the workers and is open to all members, and thus is not in itself a closed shop handling employment down from generation to generation in its own ranks, or otherwise limiting workers' rights.

Further logical limitations would cut down the number of capacious strikes now expanding in the country.

Labor could stop all the national opposition arising against it in many states where laws or constitutional changes are being advocated or enacted, to protect public interest against the unions, if they would take the mild and reasonable purposes of this bill, or alter them to suit the situation.

Deafness During Pregnancy

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M. D.

DEAFNESS or loss of hearing is a real catastrophe which interferes with efficiency. A deaf person often is upset psychologically, because he worries about his defect. Needless to say, any methods available for the prevention and control of deafness should be widely employed.

One of the principal causes of loss of hearing is a disease known as otosclerosis. This is a progressive disorder, that is, it gradually becomes worse. It occurs more frequently in women than in men. It probably runs in families. It is well known that the disease becomes worse during pregnancy or the child-bearing time. For this reason, specialists in the care of women during pregnancy are often asked to decide such questions as whether or not a person who has otosclerosis in his family should get married; and whether or not a woman with this disease should be permitted to go through pregnancy.

Doctor Edward D. Allen of Chicago says that a loss of hearing during pregnancy occurs quite frequently. When it does happen, a careful study should be made to determine the cause if possible, because the loss of hearing may be due to conditions other than otosclerosis.

When the first signs of deafness are noted during pregnancy, they may be the first indication of otosclerosis. The avoidance of child-bearing should be considered, in Doctor Allen's opinion, only when the diagnosis of otosclerosis is certain. Even then, the final decision will depend upon other circumstances, such as the extent of the disease and the amount of hearing damage that has occurred.

Measuring Instruments

Instruments and methods have been devised for measuring accurately the amount of hearing defect, and these modern devices should be employed before final judgment is given as to what should be done.

In recent times, an operation for otosclerosis has been devised, but apparently it has not been successful in all cases. However, an ear specialist should be consulted by patients with otosclerosis to determine if the operation may not be of some help. Furthermore, persons with otosclerosis should be given an education in lip reading and should employ hearing aids to lessen the hardships and discomforts associated with a deafened condition.

Answer:—I know of no evidence that any article in the diet would cause a sudden rise in blood pressure. The increase comes from some other cause.

CHAPTER TWENTY-SIX

TERRY FLED on through the darkness, for a time conscious of nothing but the urgency of leaving behind her the pressure of pain built up under the spell of the rhythmic pampas music.

She was breathless, the music only a faint whisper in the distance, when she finally slowed her rapid pace to a walk. She was a good half mile from the house, but still in the park which surrounded it. The air was heavy with the mixed fragrance she loved—the scents of thousands of trees, imported for the fabulous grounds, palms, camphor trees, magnolias, mimosa, elms, English copper beeches. The night breeze whispered among them, the moonlight sifted in exquisite patterns along the path before her.

"Terry Arnold, you're a silly fool!" she told herself fiercely. This kind of mooning was all right for 17-year-olds—or 70-year-olds. But she had no time for romancing. Especially the hopeless sentiments of the pampas song. It was that song that undermined her. She was sure of it now. She took deep breaths and clenched her fists.

Time had put it straight enough. Brooks didn't—and wouldn't ever know any woman was alive as long as he was engaged to Corinne. And he would not break that engagement. Therefore, she was only harming herself if she made the mistake of falling in love with him.

She was welcome to stay here longer, long enough probably to finish her novel. That is what she should do. But there was no point in staying on at the estancia if she didn't keep studying her hero and heroine. And if she went on emotional binges like this when she saw them together, she could certainly not write.

The trick of it was getting back into balance. She argued with herself desperately. Even if she could have taken Brooks away from his fiancée, she wouldn't want it that way. She believed in a sort of kismet when it came to building one's happiness on the loss of another person. And even if there had been no barrier between them he still could not have loved her. She had nothing to bring him. No heritage of shared interests, no family name of importance to the scheme of his life, no knowledge of the problems of his career.

But here her heart rebelled. She knew something—perhaps more than Corinne—of politics in general. And she had learned more of his problems on the estancia than Corinne.

Impatiently she shrugged aside these ridiculous little hopes. Strange, the stubborn tenacity of the heart, throwing itself against the most impenetrable wall of logic!

Before her the path wound across a small bridge spanning a tree-shaded pool. She stopped at the center of the bridge and looked down into the tranquil depths of the water. It was that strange feeling of destiny that weakened her, she thought. That sense of having found the land that was hers. The feeling of kinship with these endless plains had stolen upon her as insidiously as her love for Brooks Kimberly.

Perhaps, she told herself, there WAS some strange enchantment in this country of space and spirit and only they went home because they had returned tickets. Well, Fitz would come soon. And she would take her back. And some day Argentina, and the pampas, and Windermere would be only names to her again. A smile of passing nostalgia, maybe for the emotions she had left scattered over the waving sea of the pampas.

In the dark surface of the pool she could see the white contours of her evening dress. And as she watched it absentmindedly she seemed to see her reflection.

"Watching your reflection?" She smiled, but didn't turn as he leaned over the rustic railing beside her.

"I'm leaving it," she said. "On dark nights, after I'm gone, it will rise out of the pool and walk through the trees. Like Queen Mary's ghost through the castle. It will listen to the wind—the pampas wind—it will smell all the smells of the flowering flax fields and the jasmine and the pampas trees. It will listen to the owls and the chajals. And I shall smile in my sleep in my pull-down apartment bed in New York."

She waited for his laugh. When it didn't come, she turned to look at him. He was watching her with a queer look of concentration which startled her.

"What's the matter, Terry?" He smiled then, and said quietly. "Nothing. I was just thinking—You do like it here, don't you, Terry?"

"I—guess I love it better than any place I've ever been," Terry said with wry honesty. "That ought to help."

Terry laughed. "Help what?" As she looked at him dwarfing the little bridge, she remembered that first morning in her hotel room in Buenos Aires, when she had opened her door to see him lounging there, so tall, so carefree. She had thought, "He's too handsome for any good." He was the same to-night, in his gaucho costume. In his black chiripa, poncho and large hat, with silver spurs on his boots and silver ornamented belt, he was a blond, a faultless giant.

He took her hand in his and flexed her fingers thoughtfully. "Help me," he grinned.

Terry waited, finally demanded with a touch of impatience, "Help you what?"

"What I'm trying to say is," Terry murmured, "why use a reflection in a pool to make you smile in your sleep? I mean—and don't take your hand away, because what I'm trying to say is proper in my country as well as yours—I don't want you to go. I like you, Terry. I've told everyone I was in love with you—"

And I'm beginning to think I wasn't joking. You do something to me. You must admit I've changed since you came down. I think you're the reason. And I like it. It's queer, knowing anyone a couple of months and asking that person to marry you, but—"

"Marry you?" Until he had said the words, Terry couldn't believe he was actually working up to a proposal. In spite of Terry's carefree, giddy nature, he was more conservative about some formalities, more conscious of family and honesty, quietly, telling her she needn't give her answer now but to consider it, her amazement continued. Then he left her, kissing her hand gently, and going back through the path toward the house, a slim, arrogant shadow.

Terry watched until he was out of sight, then she released the breath she found caught in her throat. She heard herself laughing. "So this is old man Destiny," she thought, stabbed through her stunned mind. "I find the end of the world. I fall in love. I receive a proposal of marriage. All so ordered, all so neat, except for one insignificant detail: Destiny. Why couldn't you have made it the same man?"

"The Authority on Authorities"

SQUEEZE NOT REALIZED

YOU CAN be squeezed without knowing it. In fact, you can squeeze the other fellow, too, and not know you are doing it. Sometimes a player has to make a discard so early in the progress of a hand that nobody ever would guess the pressure is on him. Later on everybody sees what happened. Then maybe the post-mortem develops a discussion to see if he could have selected a better discard. But it may only become clear then that a different discard would merely have caused the giving up of a different trick instead of the one out of which he was squeezed.

The play was most interesting.

and rather funny, too. The A won the club 3 lead, the 6 went to the K, the J to the Q and then the 9 to the 10, setting up the 8. West's play did not seem very important to this stage, but it was. On the second trick he discarded the heart 2, on the third the spade 3, and on the fourth the diamond 6. Now see what that diamond discard caused.

East led the diamond A to the fifth trick, then his diamond 4 to the K, which set up South's 10 while dropping West's J. Came then the spade A, heart Q covered by the K and A, then the club 8, diamond 10, fished heart 9, heart J and spade K for an extra trick.

West felt badly about his diamond discard. But if at that stage he had tossed a second spade, he would have established North's 6. And if he had thrown a second heart, he would have set up the dummy's 7. He was squeezed on the fourth trick, but nobody knew it until later.

New Formula Offered To Avoid Another War

Make People Realize War's Costly To Them

By HELEN ESSARY
Central Press Columnist

WASHINGTON—Some of the great minds of Washington hammer at the already enfeebled ear drums with talk of World War III. This is the new certainty—World War III!

The great military minds down in the air-cooled Pentagon building have gone in for a kind of low moan which goes something like this:

"World War I and World War II are but preparations for World War III. Wars I and II have been mere warming up exercises. They have taught us more about how to kill and destroy than all the other wars of history put together. World War III will give the new ingenuity and the old evil in man a real chance."

Now having started your day happily, I shall offer the practical suggestion offered by one great military mind on the best chance of avoiding World War III:

"Make people realize how much a war costs—in cash. In cash out of their own pockets. In the months before war breaks upon us, while the tom-toms are whipping up the war fever, the cost of trying to save the world means nothing but a few marks on paper. It is hard enough at any time to appreciate money figures on paper. And the higher the figures go the less able you are to comprehend them."

"If the president of the United States should say, for example, that the outlay required of the American people by the United States treasury in the present emergency is about three billion dollars, etc.—could your mind or mine appreciate the months and years of work and taxation needed to accumulate that much money? Certainly not! The words 'billions of dollars' have no more reality than the statement in an astronomy textbook that some star is a trillion miles away. Not until the time comes to pay up the billion the war has burned up like so much chaff in a forest fire does the dim-witted citizen begin to understand what he has let himself in for.

"If that knowledge could be impressed on him before war is declared—and there should be some way of getting this knowledge over—then we might have a faint hope of 'a lasting peace.' Poetic words and horror stories won't stop wars. You've got to hit a human being in his pocket book if you really want to scare him."

The most confusing stories come out of France. A young Frenchman I knew in the pale pre-war days came to call the other day. He and his family had been through the German occupation but I could not discover that they had suffered too much from the invaders.

He himself had been in a prison camp, but because of a slight injury which prevented him from fighting, he was sent back to Paris a free man and got himself an excellent post in the French civil service.

His brother had also been taken prisoner by the Germans but, when he developed appendicitis, the Germans returned him to his family. "Of course it was tough to have the Germans in France," said the Frenchman, "but they were careful not to intrude too much. The countryside suffered terribly. But Paris was untouched."

"A severe food shortage? I do not think so in most places. You see, France is a very fertile country. Crops and animals grow fast."

"My brother's business is very good again. He is a banker. And my sister's husband has an excellent government post. There has indeed been a severe shortage in Paris and my mother has had but one maid. And there were times when we had little fuel. That was last winter. Now every one is happier."

"The shortage of clothing? That perhaps was exaggerated. Many French courtiers had a surplus of materials. This accounted for the big hats that were the style. They were a scheme to use up the materials."

As I have said at least once a week, how do you know the truth when you see it in a foreign language or any where else?

TRIUMPHAL PARADES

THE celebrations and parades in honor of General Eisenhower have indeed been wonderful, but there's one bet the designers missed. In ancient Rome a victorious general used regularly on his return to celebrate such a triumph with an enormous parade which included strange animals from the conquered countries. And the most conspicuous section was that exhibiting the captured generals and kings, who walked in chains behind the chariot of their conqueror.

Leading Nazis and Fascists—those who are still alive—would perhaps have added a striking note to any Eisenhower parade. But then, since most welcoming towns are about at the limit of their housing resources already, what with the visiting crowds of spectators, perhaps it is just as well that the captured Nazis remain in the jails provided for them.

TWO HISTORIC VOYAGES

MAJOR General Le May's record-breaking flight from Hawaii to Washington in a B-29 reminded older Americans of the famous trip of the Oregon in 1898.

The Oregon, premier "ship of the line" of the infant U. S. Navy of modern times, took 75 days to get from San Francisco around the tip of South America to the scene of action in Cuba. General Le May flew from Honolulu, far beyond the Golden Gate, to Washington in 20 hours and 15 minutes.

Of course, there is no real comparison. The Oregon had to go slowly "round the Horn" because there was no Panama Canal. And the greatest contrast, greater than speed, was in her lack of communication. Without radio or air arm she was out of contact with the world for days while the public worried lest the country's top battleship had been sunk.

In the 47 years between these voyages, the fingers of military intelligence have come to touch every spot of the earth. They follow movements with the speed of light, over friendly or enemy country alike.

This renders the historic factor of surprise extremely difficult, and should, it is hoped, discourage men of ill-will from waging war for easy gain hereafter. For similar advances in weapons will make another war the last for the human race.

There is still some modesty in the newspaper profession. One editor even confesses frankly that he doesn't understand the situation in the Levant.

Prize-winner of this year's Wasted Effort contest: the armed robber who risked a penitentiary term for a wallet which contained exactly two cents.

One safe prophecy is that before long Americans will know a lot more about the mainland of Japan.

New Formula Offered
To Avoid Another War

Make People Realize
War's Costly to Them

By HELEN ESSARY
Central Press Columnist

WASHINGTON—Some of the great minds of Washington hammer at the already enfeebled ear drums with talk of World War III. This is the new certainty—World War III!

The great military minds down in the air-cooled Pentagon building have gone in for a kind of low moan which goes something like this:

"World War I and World War II are but preparations for World War III. Wars I and II have been mere warming up exercises. They have taught us more about how to kill and destroy than all the other wars of history put together. World War III will give the new ingenuity and the old evil in man a real chance."

Now having started your day happily, I shall offer the practical suggestion offered by one great military mind on the best chance of avoiding World War III:

"Make people realize how much a war costs—in cash. In cash out of their own pockets. In the months before war breaks upon us, while the tom-toms are whipping up the war fever, the cost of trying to save the world means nothing but a few marks on paper. It is hard enough at any time to appreciate money figures on paper. And the higher the figures go the less able you are to comprehend them."

"If the president of the United States should say, for example, that the outlay required of the American people by the United States treasury in the present emergency is about three billion dollars, etc.—could your mind or mine appreciate the months and years of work and taxation needed to accumulate that much money? Certainly not! The words 'billions of dollars' have no more

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, June 26—A fair-trade-practices bill for labor (Richberg) is supposed to lie around congress until the coming expected wave of union strikes generates an irresistible demand for its adoption—then it, or something like it is passed. This, indeed, is the sotto voce program.

Such delay may sound like a back-end way to handle an expected national crisis, because the bill proposes to avert the strikes by providing machinery for just settlements, not only in the public interest, but in the long range interest of the unions. Yet you can see what is beginning to happen to the legislation in the probable absence of Alabama's Senator Lister Hill from the list of sponsors.

This was supposed to be a four-senator bill, introduced by two Democrats and two Republicans; in fact, the same ones who sponsored the declaration of senatorial peace principles, Ball, Burton, Hatch—and Hill. But on this bill, Hill says he was "just too busy" to fill out the B2H2 leadership, so it became B2H1. Most people think the real reason is that the CIO was instrumental in Hill's recent re-election.

The "too busy" treatment is likely to be applied generally to the proposal, because nothing in its announced purposes can very well be openly opposed by the unions, or anyone.

Basically, the bill would require arbitrary unions to moderate their "the public be damned" policy. Disruptions of public service, such as in the Fifth avenue bus slowdown in New York recently, where the drivers just decided to run an hour or so late, as well as strikes in public utilities, milk deliveries, etc., would be prevented by judicial compulsory arbitration.

This is in the sound interest of the unions, because all now are suffering from the conspicuous public-be-damned policy of a few unions.

The bill was not written by manufacturers or employers, but by an old union lawyer, Donald Richberg, who composed the most successful labor law ever enacted, the railway labor act. Under it the railway brotherhoods have prospered better than other labor unions, and without strikes.

The senatorial sponsors are not anti-labor people either, but somewhat left-leaning. The way they described their general purposes is this:

They would break up the competitive handling of labor through various government agencies now, and put all conciliation and mediation activities in a new five-man board.

A second board of three would handle complaints of unfair practices by labor or employer, not just labor alone, as now.

The Wagner act would be further amended to make unions democratic and to limit the closed shop to places where the union controls at least 75 per cent of the workers and is open to all members, and thus is not in itself a closed shop handling employment down from generation to generation in its own ranks, or otherwise limiting workers' rights.

Further logical limitations would cut down the number of captious strikes now expanding in the country.

Labor could stop all the national opposition arising against it in many states where laws or constitutional changes are being advocated or enacted, to protect public interest against the unions, if they would take the mild and reasonable purposes of this bill, or alter them to suit the situation.

Deafness During Pregnancy

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M. D.

DEAFNESS or loss of hearing is a real catastrophe which interferes with efficiency. A deaf person often is upset psychologically, because he worries about his defect. Needless to say, any methods available for the prevention and control of deafness should be widely employed.

One of the principal causes of loss of hearing is a disease known as otosclerosis. This is a progressive disorder, that is, it gradually becomes worse. It occurs more frequently in women than in men. It probably runs in families. It is well known that the disease becomes worse during pregnancy or the child-bearing time. For this reason, specialists in the care of women during pregnancy are often asked to decide such questions as whether or not a person who has otosclerosis in his family should get married, and whether or not a woman with this disease should be permitted to go through pregnancy.

Loss of Hearing

Doctor Edward D. Allen of Chicago says that a loss of hearing during pregnancy occurs quite frequently. When it does happen, a careful study should be made to determine the cause if possible, because the loss of hearing may be due to conditions other than otosclerosis.

When the first signs of deafness are noted during pregnancy, they may be the first indication of otosclerosis. The avoidance of child-bearing should be considered, in Doctor Allen's opinion, only when the diagnosis of otosclerosis is certain. Even then, the final decision will depend upon other circumstances, such as the extent of the disease and the amount of hearing damage that has occurred.

Measuring Instruments

Instruments and methods have been devised for measuring accurately the amount of hearing defect, and these modern devices should be employed before final judgment is given as to what should be done.

In recent times, an operation for otosclerosis has been devised, but apparently it has not been successful in all cases. However, an ear specialist should be consulted by patients with otosclerosis to determine if the operation may not be of some help. Furthermore, persons with otosclerosis should be given an education in lip reading and should employ hearing aids to lessen the hardships and discomforts associated with a deafened condition.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
I. G.:—Could something in a person's diet cause a sudden rise in the blood pressure?
Answer:—I know of no evidence that any article in the diet would cause a sudden rise in blood pressure. The increase comes from some other cause.

CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

JOHN C. FLEMING

CHAPTER TWENTY-SIX

TERRY FLED on through the darkness, for a time conscious of nothing but the urgency of leaving behind her the pressure of pain built up under the spell of the rhythmic pampas music.

She was breathless, the music only a faint whisper in the distance, when she finally slowed her rapid pace to a walk. She was a good half mile from the house, but still in the park which surrounded it. The air was heavy with the mixed fragrance she loved—the scents of thousands of trees, imported for the fabulous grounds, palms, camphor trees, magnolias, mimosa, elms, English copper beeches. The night breeze whispered among them, the moonlight sifted in exquisite patterns along the path before her.

"Terry Arnold, you're a silly fool!" she told herself fiercely. This kind of mooning was all right for 17-year olds—or 70-year olds. But she had no time for romancing. Especially the hopeless sentiments of the pampas song. It was that song that undermined her. She was sure of it now. She took deep breaths and clenched her fists.

Time had put it straight enough. Brooks didn't—and wouldn't ever know any woman was alive as long as he was engaged to Corinne. And he would not break that engagement. Therefore, she was only harming herself if she made the mistake of falling in love with him.

She was welcome to stay here longer, long enough probably to finish her novel. That is what she should do. But there was no point in staying on at the estancia if she didn't keep studying her hero and heroine. And if she went on emotional binges like this when she saw them together, she could certainly not write.

The trick of it was getting back into balance. She argued with herself desperately. Even if she could have taken Brooks away from his fiancée, she wouldn't want it that way. She believed in a sort of kismet when it came to building one's happiness on the loss of another person. And even if there had been no barrier between them he still could not have loved her. She had nothing to bring him. No heritage of shared interests, no family name of importance to the scheme of his life, no knowledge of the problems of his career.

But here her heart rebelled. She knew something—perhaps more than Corinne—of politics in general. And she had learned more of his problems on the estancia than Corinne.

Impatiently she shrugged aside these ridiculous little hopes. Strange, the stubborn tenacity of the heart, throwing itself against the most impenetrable wall of logic!

Before her the path wound across a small bridge spanning a tree-shaded pool. She stopped at the center of the bridge and looked down into the tranquil depths of the water. It was that strange feeling of destiny that weakened her, she thought. That sense of having found the land that was hers. The feeling of kinship with these endless plains had stolen upon her as insidiously as her love for Brooks Kimberly.

Perhaps, she told herself, there WAS some strange enchantment in this country of space and spirit and only they went home because they had returned tickets. Well, Fitz would come soon. And he would take her back. And some day Argentina, and the pampas, and Windemere would be only names to her again. A smile of passing nostalgia, maybe for the emotions she had left scattered over the waving sea of the pampas.

In the dark surface of the pool she could see the white contours of her evening dress. And as she watched it absentmindedly she stood at her elbow.

"Watching your reflection?" she smiled, but didn't turn as he leaned over the rustic railing beside her.

"I'm leaving it," she said. "On dark nights, after I'm gone, it will rise out of the pool and walk through the trees, like Queen Mary's ghost through the castle. It will listen to the wind—the pampas wind—it will smell all the smells of the flowering flax fields and the jasmine and the paraiso trees. It will listen to the owls and the chajals. And I shall smile in my sleep in my pull-down apartment bed in New York."

She waited for his laugh. When it didn't come, she turned to look at him. He was watching her with a queer look of concentration which startled her.

"What's the matter, Raff?" He smiled then, and said quietly, "Nothing. I was just thinking—you do like it here, don't you, Terry?"

"I—guess I love it better than any place I've ever been," Terry said with wry honesty. He took a long breath. "That ought to help."

Terry laughed. "Help what?" As she looked at him dwarfing the little bridge, she remembered that first morning in her hotel room in Buenos Aires, when she had opened her door to see him lounging there, so tall, so carefree. She had thought, "He's too handsome for any good." He was the same to-night, in his gaucho costume. In his black chiripias, poncho and large hat, with silver spurs on his boots and silver ornamented belt, he was a blond, a faultless giant.

He took her hand in his and flexed her fingers thoughtfully.

"Help me," he grinned.

Terry waited, finally demanding with a touch of impatience, "Help you what?"

"What I'm trying to say is," Raff murmured, "why use a reflection in a pool to make you smile in your sleep? I mean—and don't take your hand away, because what I'm trying to say is proper in my country as well as in yours—I don't want you to go. I like you, Terry. I've told everyone I was in love with you—and I'm beginning to think I wasn't joking. You do something to me. You must admit I've changed since you came down. I think you're the reason. And I like it. It's queer, knowing anyone a couple of months and asking that person to marry you, but—"

"Marry you?" Until he had said the words, Terry couldn't believe he was actually working up to a proposal. In spite of Raff's carefree, giddy nature, he was more conservative about some formalities, more conscious of family and class than Brooks. As he went on, homely, quietly, telling her she needn't give her answer now but to consider it, her amazement continued. Then he left her, kissing her hand gently, and going back through the path toward the house, a slim, arrogant shadow.

Terry watched until he was out of sight, then she released the breath she found caught in her throat. She heard herself laughing. "So this is old man Destiny," she thought stabbed through her stunned mind. "I find the end of the world. I fall in love, I receive a proposal of marriage. All so ordered, all so neat, except for one insignificant detail: Destiny. Why couldn't you have made it the same man?"

"The Authority on Authorities"

SQUEEZE NOT REALIZED

YOU CAN be squeezed without knowing it. In fact, you can squeeze the other fellow, too, and not know you are doing it. Sometimes a player has to make a discard so early in the progress of a hand that nobody ever would guess the pressure is on him. Later on everybody sees what happened. Then maybe the post-mortem develops a discussion to see if he could have selected a better discard. But it may only become clear then that a different discard would merely have caused the giving up of a different trick instead of the one out of which he was squeezed.

If East had made the correct overall of the 1-Heart, or 1-Diamond, South never would have been the No Trump declarer on this deal, because he had no Diamond stopper. But with East bidding clubs, South was strong enough for his No Trump call after North made that powerful reverse bid of 2-Spades.

The play was most interesting.

On the second trick he discarded the heart 2, on the third the spade 3 and on the fourth the diamond 6. Now see what that diamond discard caused.

East led the diamond A to the fifth trick, then his diamond 4 to the K, which set up South's 10 while dropping West's J. Came then the spade A, heart Q covered by the K and A, then the club 8, diamond 10, fished heart 9, heart J and spade K for an extra trick. West felt badly about his diamond discard. But if at that stage he had tossed a second spade, he would have established North's 6. And if he had thrown a second heart, he would have set up the dummy's 7. He was squeezed on the fourth trick, but nobody knew it until later.

To remove the flaky deposit from the inside of a tea kettle, if the kettle is aluminum or iron, try heating it very slowly over low heat. The expansion of metal will sometimes cause the lime deposit to crack and flake off. If the kettle is of other metal or glass, let a solution of vinegar, water and a little salt stand in it. Repeat this treatment if the mineral deposit is not removed the first time.

Barbecued Franks For Supper Menu

The good old frankfurter has become our standby these meat-scarce days. Have you tried barbecuing them?

For a buffet supper or the picnic grounds, the recipe I'm giving you today is tops. The cake takes no sugar, although if you can't get corn syrup you may use one-half c. sugar instead.

Today's Menu

Barbecued Frankfurters
French Fried Potatoes
Rolls
Soft Honey Cake
Coffee

Barbecued Frankfurters
12 frankfurters 1 tsp. tabasco
1 tsp. fat
1 onion, 1 tsp. paprika
chopped 1/2 c. catchup
1/2 tsp. pepper 1/4 c. vinegar
4 tsp. sugar 1/2 c. water
1 tsp. mustard 4 tsp. Worcestershire sauce

Melt fat. Add onion and cook until clear. Add pepper, sugar, mustard, Worcestershire sauce, tabasco sauce, paprika, catchup, vinegar, and water, and bring to a boil. With a sharp knife, cut a 3-inch slit in each of the frankfurters and place in flat baking dish slit side up. Pour sauce over all and bake in 350 degrees F. oven for 25 mins. Baste frankfurters with sauce. Serve in split, buttered rolls with green onions. Serves 6.

How is Your SILHOUETTE?

Etienne de Silhouette was Finance Minister of France in 1759, under Louis XV. He urged the people to lead simpler lives in order to build a stronger France. Caricaturists came out with portraits featuring only the outlines of the head and shoulders. They called this frugal form of art a "silhouette."

Today America must watch its "silhouette." To combat dangerous inflation, our national economy must be reduced to the bare black and white outlines of a silhouette. We urge you to practice thrift for victory and security. Buy War Bonds. Build up your bank account.

NEWS Behind the NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

If they would say the word to senators like Hill, the bill would go through in a minute.

Unfortunately too many labor leaders now are shortsighted reactionaries who want to defend the status quo and prevent any reform of existing unsatisfactory conditions.

So it is quite possible congress will not only wait until the strike-horse runs away but the whole labor barn burns down, before taking up this key to lock the door.

Excessive use of power always kills itself by its own excesses. History is bulging with undeviating examples. Latest one is Hitler, who contrived his own defeat by carrying his power to lengths which caused an overwhelming opposition to be aroused. Statesmen, labor leaders or other humans seem unable to realize that power lasts only as long as it is wisely used.

Those who read this column Thursday on the legal power built up by the black faction of the supreme court for unions to fix prices, restrain trade and conduct operations outlawed for all other people, in their own selfish interest, will recognize that, too, as labor to exploit the interests of the labor to exploit the interests of the consumers who are the public.

MAURIELLO MAY HAVE ENDED CAREER OF NOVA

BOSTON, June 26—Tami Mauriello of New York wondered to-day whether he had delivered the blow to end the career of California heavyweight Lou Nova, whom he knocked out in one round last night.

Just after the opening bell, Mauriello hit Nova, the 35-year-old Van Nuys, Cal., exponent of the cosmic punch, above the left eye with a left hook, sending him down for an eight count. When Nova arose an old wound above his eyebrow was bleeding profusely.

Nova, hanging on gamely, pawed at Mauriello but failed to deliver a solid blow. Tubby Tami continued to be the aggressor, wading in with both fists. Finally he hit Nova with a pair of slapping lefts and followed with the knockout punch, a looping right hand that caught Nova on the jaw.

Batting Leaders Of Both Circuits In 1944 Low In 1945 Standings

NEW YORK, June 26—Uneasy lies the head that wears the crown—at least as far as the various major league baseball champions of 1944 are concerned.

With the current season drawing close to the half-way mark today, most of last year's individual leaders were bogged down while new and sometimes surprising gentlemen have risen to take their places.

NEW CHAMPIONS, TO BE CROWNED IN BIG LEAGUES

Batting Leaders Of Both Circuits In 1944 Low In 1945 Standings

NEW YORK, June 26—Uneasy lies the head that wears the crown—at least as far as the various major league baseball champions of 1944 are concerned.

With the current season drawing close to the half-way mark today, most of last year's individual leaders were bogged down while new and sometimes surprising gentlemen have risen to take their places.

Swinging a bat with plenty of hits in it, Tommy Holmes of the Boston Braves indicates that he means business in his efforts to annex the major league batting championship. And as far as last year's champ, Fred (Dixie) Walker of the Brooklyn Dodgers is concerned, Holmes apparently doesn't need to worry. The Boston outfielder has a .386 average while Walker is 29th among National League regulars with a puny mark of .278.

Lou Boudreau, Cleveland Indians' manager and 1944 American League leader, is little better off. Replacing him is the amazing Tony Cuccinello of the Chicago White Sox, finally blossoming out as a hitter after a decade of play. Cuccinello has a .342 mark and Boudreau is 24th among American League regulars with a .265 figure.

One of the few likely to succeed himself is Hal Newhouse, crafty Tiger southpaw, who is ahead of his 1944 pitching time table with 11 victories and four defeats. Going at that pace he will win more than 20 games whereas in 1944 he picked up 29 wins while losing nine times. Even his leadership is in jeopardy. Russ Christopher, the one-man pitching staff for Philadelphia's white elephant Athletics, has won 11 while losing only two and rookie Dave (Doc) Ferriss of the Boston Red Sox tops Newhouse in percentage with 10 triumphs and two losses.

In the National League Ted Wilks of the Cards, who won 17 and lost four, has equaled his 1944 record on the losing side with four defeats, but he has mustered up only four wins to go with them. His ex-team mate, Morton Cooper, now of the Braves, is the current National League leader with six triumphs and one loss, but that is a long way from big Mort's 1944 total of 22 and 7.

One of the biggest "busts" of the year has been Bill Nicholson, the 1944 home run and runs batted in king from the Chicago Cubs. Things have gotten so bad with him that he is going to take hitting lessons from Rogers Hornsby, one of the all-time National League greats in the base-hit department. Nicholson to date is 16th in runs batted in with 31 while likable Luis Olmo, the battin' Latin from Brooklyn is the new leader with 54 to date. Ernie Lombardi of the Giants is the new home run leader with 13 while Nicholson has only five, a far cry from his 33 total of 1944.

In the American League two 1944 champions apparently have decided to switch crowns. Vernon Stephens of the Browns has displaced Nick Etten of the Yankees as the home run leader with 11, while Etten, who hit 22 last year, has only five to date in 1945. However, Etten is tied with Bob Johnson of the Red Sox for the runs batted in leadership with 39. Stephens, who led the league with 109 last year, has only 29 thus far and rates fifth.

There are new leaders in both leagues in base-stealing. George Case of Washington, who lost his title to George Stirmweiss of the Yankees last season, is back in front again with 13 while Stirmweiss is second with 10. In the National, Olmo has nine and Johnny Barrett of the Pirates, the 1944 leader, is second with eight. Stirmweiss stole 55 last year while Barrett pilfered 28.

Then of course there are the Browns and Cards. The 1944 pennant winners, they now are in sixth place and second respectively in their current campaigns.

There were no major league games in either league yesterday.

BAKER PACES OSU GOLFERS TO NCAA TITLE

COLUMBUS, O., June 26—Howard Baker, husky young Ohio State university sophomore, today led a field of 16 qualifiers into the second round of the National Collegiate Athletic Association golf tournament.

The Gallipoli, O., golfer fired a blistering 142 in first round competition yesterday to pace Ohio State to the 1945 NCAA team championship, succeeding Notre Dame which wound up fourth with a team total of 633 as compared with the Buckeyes' 602.

Northwestern and Michigan tied for second place in the team competition with 621 each while Minnesota trailed in last place with 638.

Notre Dame has never beaten Chicago or Iowa in football.

'Forgotten Acres' Being Studied By Pickaway County Farmers

MILK AND MEAT MAY COME FROM UNUSED LAND

Worn-Out Fields Can Be Transformed Into Good Pastures

Pickaway county farmers will read with interest an article on "forgotten acres" which appears in the July issue of Capper's Farmer.

The article tells how land which no longer contributes to farm income can be rehabilitated to produce more milk and meat on Mid-western farms.

With milk products and meat scarce and prices high, farmers are taking more interest in producing these types of food. "On-their-toes" farmers are utilizing every bit of land they can.

Pasture improvement offers the prime advantage of enabling farmers to increase production within the boundary of their own fences and thus avoid the questionable alternative of buying more land, the article points out. Specific procedures for improving pastures on good and neglected land have been demonstrated throughout the country, it adds.

"It is logical that grassland farming will be more and more emphasized in postwar years as prices for dairy and livestock products decline and economical production of milk and meat becomes more essential for success," the article declares. "This conclusion is warranted by the following facts:

Pointing out that good pastures reduce livestock production costs a fourth to a half or more and provide a bulwark against soil erosion, the article lists a 4-step pasture improvement program:

1- Test the soil for needed treatment. The county agent or state agricultural college will give directions. Don't guess about the quantities of lime, nitrogen, phosphorus, potassium or combination required.

2- Prepare a good seedbed by thoroughly tearing up or scarifying the sod with field cultivator spring tooth or disk. Working once or twice in fall after grass has stopped growing will simplify the spring job.

3- Seed drought-resistant legumes such as sweet clover, alfalfa or medium red clover. For steep slopes 15 pounds of sweet clover and 5 pounds medium red an acre are recommended.

4-Fence the renovated area to protect the young legume seedlings and to permit controlled grazing later.

Such a program should be developed around the standard pasture grass of the community or area involved, the article says. It can be made effective where previous mismanagement, depleted fertility or drought have been responsible for poor pastures.

SOCIAL WELFARE LEADER
LAFAYETTE, Ind.—The Louisiana Conference of Social Welfare has the second highest membership of any state social welfare conference in the nation, and is exceeded only by that of New York. Dr. R. H. Bolyard, president of the LCSW, said that the group now has more than 2,600.

NANNY GOAT HAS QUADS
NEW ORLEANS—A nanny goat recently gave birth to four kids here which now bear the names Roosevelt, Churchill, Stalin and Chiang Kai-shek, disregarding sex. Sex of the kids was divided equally—two males, two females. Quadruple birth among goats is phenomenal, although twin birth is common.

DRIVER BLAMES BEE
MILFORD, Mass.—A belligerent bee was blamed for an automobile accident here that resulted in injuries to John L. Manuel and his wife. Manuel lost control of his automobile when a bee got trapped inside his coat. The car hurtled from a highway, struck a telephone pole and uprooted a tree.

ASHVILLE PLANS JULY 4 AFFAIR

Details Of Big Community Celebration Announced By Committees

Final plans for the big July Fourth celebration at Ashville were completed Monday evening at a Community Club meeting attended by members of all committees.

The all-day and night celebration will officially get under way with a parade beginning at 11:00 a. m. The parade committee announces that the parade will form on Walnut street in front of the Ashville school building. The line of march will be south on Walnut street to Main street, west on Main to Long street, north on Long to Harrison street, and east on Harrison to the Community Park where the parade will disband. Because of war time regulations, the parade will not cross the railroad to the West side as in former years.

The committee will award liberal prizes for the following: decorated automobiles, decorated bicycles, comic, horse and pony, pet, and industrial entries. A gift will also be given to each baby entered in the parade. Various organizations such as the Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, lodges, and 4H Clubs are invited to march in the parade which will be led by the Ashville and Walnut township high school bands.

The lunch stand committee has been promised a ton of fish with plenty of soft drinks, hamburgers, and ice cream to feed the crowd estimated to reach 10,000.

At 1:30 the Ashville and Walnut township bands will give a band concert.

Two interesting softball games have been scheduled for the afternoon; the first beginning at 2:00 will pit the newly-organized Ashville K. of P. team against Canal Winchester in a game which promises plenty of laughs as well as action. At 4:00 the Circleville All-Stars will meet the fast Blue Ribbon Dairy team, one of the leaders in the Circleville league, in a game which should be interesting and hard fought.

For the youngsters, various games and contests will be held between games.

From 6:00 to 8:00 p. m. there will be a free square dance, an attraction which has been added by popular request. Beginning at 8:00 there will be dancing to the music of Tom Crawshaw's dance band. This band, composed of Columbus musicians, is sure to please.

During the all-day and night celebration rides, shows, and other carnival attractions will be furnished by the Central Amusement Co. of Dayton, which is playing to capacity crowds at Vandalia this week.

I. W. KINSEY

The man with his "hand on the throttle," the conductor, the station agent, the track man — these are some of the folks who spell railroading to Mr. John Q. Public.

But behind the scenes, there are thousands of men and women who know little about driving locomotives, taking up tickets, keeping up track — but their work is vital to railroad operation. These are the office folks — the clerical forces with a special "Know How" in the varied and multitudinous paper work so necessary to keep the trains rolling day and night.

Theirs is the job of compiling and keeping an accurate, detailed record of everything the railroad does. They keep account of hundreds of thousands of shipments of freight and movements of passengers; of the millions of dollars that the railroad takes in and pays out; of thousands of purchases of railroad materials and supplies.

They check on the location of thousands of units of rolling stock; keep records of repairs; make up the pay rolls, issue vouchers, and so on and so on. But that isn't all. Governmental requirements must be complied with — a task that entails the keeping and filing of a multitude of forms and reports in connection with rulings and interpretations, investigations, bureaus and commissions.

The clerical employees of the Norfolk and Western Family, along with their co-workers, are keyed to the overall task of wartime railroading, and are successfully performing the biggest job in N. & W. history.

When final and complete Victory is won, this railroad and its employees, with unity of purpose and determination, will work to build a happier, more prosperous America and a sound and lasting peace.

Worn-Out Fields Can Be Transformed Into Good Pastures

Pickaway county farmers will read with interest an article on "forgotten acres" which appears in the July issue of Capper's Farmer.

The article tells how land which no longer contributes to farm income can be rehabilitated to produce more milk and meat on Mid-western farms.

With milk products and meat scarce and prices high, farmers are taking more interest in producing these types of food. "On-their-toes" farmers are utilizing every bit of land they can.

Pasture improvement offers the prime advantage of enabling farmers to increase production within the boundary of their own fences and thus avoid the questionable alternative of buying more land, the article points out. Specific procedures for improving pastures on good and neglected land have been demonstrated throughout the country, it adds.

"It is logical that grassland farming will be more and more emphasized in postwar years as prices for dairy and livestock products decline and economical production of milk and meat becomes more essential for success," the article declares. "This conclusion is warranted by the following facts:

Pointing out that good pastures reduce livestock production costs a fourth to a half or more and provide a bulwark against soil erosion, the article lists a 4-step pasture improvement program:

1- Test the soil for needed treatment. The county agent or state agricultural college will give directions. Don't guess about the quantities of lime, nitrogen, phosphorus, potassium or combination required.

2- Prepare a good seedbed by thoroughly tearing up or scarifying the sod with field cultivator spring tooth or disk. Working once or twice in fall after grass has stopped growing will simplify the spring job.

3- Seed drought-resistant legumes such as sweet clover, alfalfa or medium red clover. For steep slopes 15 pounds of sweet clover and 5 pounds medium red an acre are recommended.

4-Fence the renovated area to protect the young legume seedlings and to permit controlled grazing later.

Such a program should be developed around the standard pasture grass of the community or area involved, the article says. It can be made effective where previous mismanagement, depleted fertility or drought have been responsible for poor pastures.

ASHVILLE PLANS JULY 4 AFFAIR

Details Of Big Community Celebration Announced By Committees

Final plans for the big July Fourth celebration at Ashville were completed Monday evening at a Community Club meeting attended by members of all committees.

The all-day and night celebration will officially get under way with a parade beginning at 11:00 a. m. The parade committee announces that the parade will form on Walnut street in front of the Ashville school building. The line of march will be south on Walnut street to Main street, west on Main to Long street, north on Long to Harrison street, and east on Harrison to the Community Park where the parade will disband. Because of war time regulations, the parade will not cross the railroad to the West side as in former years.

The committee will award liberal prizes for the following: decorated automobiles, decorated bicycles, comic, horse and pony, pet, and industrial entries. A gift will also be given to each baby entered in the parade. Various organizations such as the Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, lodges, and 4H Clubs are invited to march in the parade which will be led by the Ashville and Walnut township high school bands.

The lunch stand committee has been promised a ton of fish with plenty of soft drinks, hamburgers, and ice cream to feed the crowd estimated to reach 10,000.

At 1:30 the Ashville and Walnut township bands will give a band concert.

Two interesting softball games have been scheduled for the afternoon; the first beginning at 2:00 will pit the newly-organized Ashville K. of P. team against Canal Winchester in a game which promises plenty of laughs as well as action. At 4:00 the Circleville All-Stars will meet the fast Blue Ribbon Dairy team, one of the leaders in the Circleville league, in a game which should be interesting and hard fought.

For the youngsters, various games and contests will be held between games.

From 6:00 to 8:00 p. m. there will be a free square dance, an attraction which has been added by popular request. Beginning at 8:00 there will be dancing to the music of Tom Crawshaw's dance band. This band, composed of Columbus musicians, is sure to please.

During the all-day and night celebration rides, shows, and other carnival attractions will be furnished by the Central Amusement Co. of Dayton, which is playing to capacity crowds at Vandalia this week.

HELPING HANDS-

The man with his "hand on the throttle," the conductor, the station agent, the track man — these are some of the folks who spell railroading to Mr. John Q. Public.

But behind the scenes, there are thousands of men and women who know little about driving locomotives, taking up tickets, keeping up track — but their work is vital to railroad operation. These are the office folks — the clerical forces with a special "Know How" in the varied and multitudinous paper work so necessary to keep the trains rolling day and night.

Theirs is the job of compiling and keeping an accurate, detailed record of everything the railroad does. They keep account of hundreds of thousands of shipments of freight and movements of passengers; of the millions of dollars that the railroad takes in and pays out; of thousands of purchases of railroad materials and supplies.

They check on the location of thousands of units of rolling stock; keep records of repairs; make up the pay rolls, issue vouchers, and so on and so on. But that isn't all. Governmental requirements must be complied with — a task that entails the keeping and filing of a multitude of forms and reports in connection with rulings and interpretations, investigations, bureaus and commissions.

The clerical employees of the Norfolk and Western Family, along with their co-workers, are keyed to the overall task of wartime railroading, and are successfully performing the biggest job in N. & W. history.

When final and complete Victory is won, this railroad and its employees, with unity of purpose and determination, will work to build a happier, more prosperous America and a sound and lasting peace.
